The joint account is required and we will have to get one.

It will only be used for bills.

The fair percentage of the bills will be transferred by a standing order
each month into the joint account.

If I am made redundant, lose my job, have a serious medical condition that stops me working, etc. I will expect you to put as much money as you can in there to cover what I can't. I will also do the same for you if roles are reversed.

You need to realise this is what we need to do and what married couples/normal people do. 14:54 ✓✓

I will try and help you at every avenue but you need to realise I am not trying to win, I'm not trying to steal about 40% of one months wage and spent over eight years trying to do that and I have not done all I have for you and the kids for one massive practical joke to just hurt you all. 14:57 ✓✓

It's not about taking the apology mal. That's not sustainable. If you have an issue raise it and fucking communicate so it can possibly be resolved. You don't just apologise and leave it. Don't preach to me about teamwork mal you can't even elaborate on the issue you have raised. I am not having this I'd all over a fucking joint account.

There's no serious issue but I've said a few times now it's not your standard sort of relationship this. I do feel you keep me at an arm's length a lot. I've just got use to it. But the joint account needs to happen. I wouldn't want one previously as it would join us financially but a mortgage does that anyway. But the reluctance to get a joint account is just an example of you keeping me at an arms length. You have trust issues from previous relationships but you think I have helped and supported you financially for years to Nick about £1000 of one wage. Just crazy to think that

15:12 ✓✓

It saved expecting you to transfer money and you not having it.

On payday we both put the agreed money in that account. Then the DD comes out that account. We do not use it to buy anything

15:1

Why is it not standard?

How do I keep you at arms length?

The comment about me not acting like I'm married is not simply from me not wanting this account. I've never wanted one and always made it crystal clear. 15:14

Do you think we're a stereotypical married couple 15:15 ✓✓

Yes but that was pre mortgage. From the moment we looked at getting a mortgage together I've made it crystal clear that it is a prerequisite that we will have both mortgage and joint account or neither. I've said many times we have to get a joint account 15:16 ✓✓

My only experience of marriage is beating the shit out of each other and the kids so I'd say no and I'm happy about that. You need to ask

My only experience of marriage is beating the shit out of each other and the kids so I'd say no and I'm happy about that. You need to ask yourself what you think is a stereotypical marriage. Then maybe you need to work out from that what your issue is. We have started having sex a bit more often as I wasn't able to do that a few months ago. That's the only change there has been and I don't think it is a negative one.

Well physical experience of marriage is the same. But I brought myself up watching American tv. We don't have anything like that. Your shields are always raised and you're warpcore is always online. You've had a bad life and I feel like you see my errors or refusals is an act of aggression or an attack on you. Where it is either an error or a personal conviction. I quite often I feel like I'm walking on egg shells. Liked previous comment. Instead of a quick "oooops missed a wo... I now feel like I have mountain to climb to sort things out and get to

These things can take weeks to restore back to the point we once were at hours before.

15:23 ✓✓

You still haven't told me what your issue is. You're just being really vague. So I have no idea what your issue is so it won't be resolved. If you're happy with no moving forward that's fine, apology accepted.

I think that's fairly good explanation.

I can't make a mistake I can't say no. If I do either you take it as an attack and it takes a long time to resolve stuff as like you say you just shut off. This leads me to walking on egg shells. All this is possibly because I do feel it's very much you and me not us. I really do feel I try my hardest to please you as much as I can. But there is that stress there that I might fail and you'll take offence and there's no way to just say sorry and move on

do 😂

What can you say no to?

15:33

I just feel anything you ask I have to do it otherwise it's an argument as small or large it is. I have to assess if the refusal of the task
worth the argument 😂
