Treatment from a GP for UTIs that keep coming back

If your UTI comes back after treatment, or you have 2 UTIs in 6 months, a GP may: prescribe a different antibiotic or prescribe a low-dose antibiotic to take for up to 6 months. prescribe a vaginal cream containing oestrogen, if you have gone through the menopause.

Short urethra lots of thrusting equates bacteria getting in there. Needs to wee

11:07

It's unlikely I'm carrying the GNRs that are infecting you. But I could be shoving them up there

11:08

I've done that last night though

You aren't feeling good today as you had a small number of bacteria affecting you yday. However they have replicated and created a hell of a lot more so now you have a large number of bacteria which will be about 5 log or more higher than before. So not only will that be a heavily infectious number but will take a lot longer for your immune system to kill off once the antibiotics start helping

Just been soooooo hungry the past few weeks

16:30 ✓✓

You've just put muscle on chill out and stop using the scales 🤔 16:31

Not put 12lbs of muscle on my stomach 😂 16:34 ✓✓

I would like think a couple of pounds of muscle but not 12 and not purely on my stomach 16:35 ✓✓

Mal it's 100% all muscle I know my vaj don't lie to me 16:35

The only thing my van ignores is red flags 😂 16:35

Rest of your shirt is stretched due to muscle it just affects that area 16:36

If there was a hole in your back it would stretch open there 🧑 16:36
